Is there a way to format my harddrive so if I installed a corrupted win 8.1 onto it, and it doesnt go through the install process, I could format it, and then install win 8.1 again? I have "Classic Shell" and "Classic Desktop". I want to use "Classic Desktop" and keep "Classic Shell" in a separate partition. I installed "Classic Desktop" and then I tried to import "Classic Shell" into "Classic Desktop" but when I opened "Classic Shell" I got an error message saying that "Classic Desktop" was open. I have read a lot of forum posts with different solutions but I still don't know how to do this. Is there any way I can fix this?. I can't access my "Classic Shell". I installed it because I don't like the look of "Windows 7" and I like the default windows 7 theme. I restarted the computer and got the error message "Classic Shell failed to start service". I can still access all my windows and hardware normally. I can access my user profile which is the only thing I've changed on my computer. I can't change anything in Classic Shell or access any more drives and such. Is there any way to fix this?. I have had errors on this computer when starting games. Some times before starting the game and/or after completing the first mission the game shuts down my computer. Other times the game loads and I get the error message "Game demo registered but driver could not be loaded". The game and the demo are both from the same company. The error message states "the driver at the location you entered could not be loaded". I have tried rebooting the computer and I have also tried using a new.ini file with no success. Could someone help me get this game or the demo to work or give me another way to install it?. I need to install Windows 7 64 bit. I have already Windows 8.1 64 bit. I have the Windows 7 ISO but I can't seem to make it into a bootable USB. I tried a few different ways but none of them worked. Are there any way I can use these methods for Windows 7 or is there another way? I message.Q: How do I find the point on the derivative of a function at a given value? Let's say I have a monotonic function  $f: \mathbb{R} \rightarrow \mathbb{R}$  with derivative  $f'(x) \geq 0$  for all  $x$ ,  $f(a) = b$ , and  $f'(a) = 0$ . In this case, I would want to find  $a$ , and by extension,  $b$ . However, if  $f'(a) \neq 0$  (so that  $f$  is not locally linear at  $a$ ), is there a way to find  $a$  and by extension  $b$ ? I have access to the values  $f(x)$ ,  $f'(x)$ ,  $f''(x)$  and  $f^{(n)}(x)$  for all  $x$ , so the answers I seek are not numerical. A: If 3e33713323
