The Spanish world number one, who was defending his title on Centre Court, sat down with Dominic King, chair umpire, and Juliette Ferrier when told of his victory over Brit Andy Murray. Facing question from the press pack about what had prompted his point-loss, the 36-year-old was then asked to show his support for his wife, Miranda, as she had to leave the side of the court to await the arrival of their baby. In an exchange with King, Ferrer revealed his fear of missing "Miranda's part of the history". (Image: Yui Mok/PA Wire) (Image: Yui Mok/PA Wire) (Image: Yui Mok/PA Wire) Having gone through questioning from the media pack he then called to King over to the side of the court. The press began to move off and Ferrer told King that he had seen "a violation of privacy". He added that he had been asked to support his wife for the cameras. (Image: Yui Mok/PA Wire) (Image: Yui Mok/PA Wire) Bowing down, King apologised and told him to be careful in the future. Meanwhile, the Briton simply replied: "Very funny," before walking off towards his box. That appears to have been the end of the matter.Q: Is there a function to do stuff if a string has 0 or 1 characters? I am looking for a function which will do a function call if a string has 0 or 1 characters A: No, there's no built-in function to do this. I can imagine several ways to do it. One way is to go through all characters in a string, and check whether it matches. If there is a match, you can make the function call. Alternatively, you can check whether the length of the string is 0 or 1 using strlen(). Q:

Structure-function studies on the basic nicotinic acetylcholine receptor of Torpedo californica. II. Age- and detergent-dependent inactivation of the ionic current. The development of an inactivating component of the nicotinic acetylcholine receptor (nAChR) was studied in a preparation of Torpedo californica electroplex. Maximal inactivation of the ionic current activated by alpha-bungarotoxin (BTX) was produced by 20-min exposure to 1 mM divalent cations (Cd²⁺, Co²⁺, Cu²⁺, Zn²⁺) or by a single exposure to 1 mM Ca²⁺. The inactivation was temperature-dependent, with inactivation occurring at 10 degrees-20 degrees C. The inactivating component was resistant to 100 microM N-ethylmaleimide (NEM) but exhibited complete sensitivity to NEM when used in combination with 10 mM dithiothreitol (DTT). DTT accelerated the onset and accelerated the rate of inactivation in a concentration-dependent manner, with half-inactivation times of 0.1 min in the presence of 0.1 mM DTT and 10 sec in the absence of DTT. The inactivation did not occur when Ni²⁺ was substituted for Cd²⁺, and in this case, the ionic current recovered rapidly upon application of 10 mM DTT. The results are interpreted as evidence for the presence of a dithiol-sensitive inactivating channel in T. californica nAChR. This inactivating channel is not unitary in the sense that it can open independently of the other channels and can become allosterically coupled to the alpha-BTX binding site without a significant change in single channel conductance. These findings provide further evidence for the existence of multiple classes of receptors in the nAChR of T. californica electroplex.Q: F# asynchronous events returning Type' argument in Type' argument declaration was ignored In the following function I am trying to define two asynchronous events and then wrap them together in a generator. It seems that the check function is never called. But if I declare the events, the code compiles fine, but the calls to those events in subsequent lines of the function are never completed. let check word = async { // check word here return "true"
