La Hija Del Sastre: The Poet of Exotic Travel, Gibran, and the Un-Travelling (Paperback) (Spanish Edition) Description An exquisite literary masterpiece that continues to create interest in Arabic literature, now in a new edition published for the first time in English. Capturing the magic of the Orient and the dangers of colonialism, Felicia Teskey offers a glimpse of the literary masterpiece known as La Hija del Sastre, translated into English for the first time in this new edition. The story of this greatest of Arabic novels follows the adventures of an Egyptian merchant who on his travels to India meets a mysterious Indian woman, who helps him return home. Set in the time of the Crusades, the tale of love, hatred, jealousy, and war is an unforgettable read, even for those who do not speak Arabic. With his beautiful prose and exquisitely fluid expression, the Moroccan writer Ahmed Alhassane matches the elegance and sensitivity of Miguel de Cervantes, while capturing a sense of Arab identity that is at once exotic and familiar. This translation follows the original text faithfully, and is accompanied by a short survey of the novel's historical context and the cultural effects of colonialism. The poet of exotic travel, Gibran, and the un-travelling is a beautiful gem of Arabic literature that is set to delight as much those who know the language as those who do not. The present study was conducted to assess the rational use of ciprofloxacin (CIP) and norfloxacin (NOR) in patients with acute febrile illnesses and to establish the adverse reactions to the two drugs. A total of 500 patients suspected of having acute febrile illness were enrolled in the study. They were given CIP and NOR according to the general rules for the treatment of fever. The causative microorganisms were identified using Gram's stain and standard laboratory procedures. The statistical analysis was performed using SPSS 10.01 for Windows. Of the 500 patients examined, the causative microorganisms in 420 (84%) were identified. The most common isolates were Escherichia coli (16.4%), Klebsiella pneumoniae (14.4%), and Streptococcus pyogenes (11.6%). The resistance of these pathogens to CIP was 7.7% and to NOR, 3.9%. In this study, CIP and NOR were mostly effective in the treatment of patients with acute febrile illness. The fever subsided in 73.1% and 74.5% of cases, respectively. The use of CIP should be restricted to patients with infection of Gram-positive microorganisms, and NOR should be used to treat infections caused by Gram-negative microorganisms in patients who are unable to tolerate CIP.
