The idea for this program came from a simple need I had, to have a simple monitor program that I couldn't be bothered to write myself, that caught the simplest of errors. Version 1.6 Alpha. Still need more documentation and improvements. 1) Fixed minor errors. I'm not sure where yet, but there should be one. 2) Now handles files that have been deleted 3) The idea is that a directory will have files and the directories monitored for changes. My instructions: 1) When you set the directory, you can select which type of monitoring you want by checking the boxes next to the items in the box. 2) Depending on the type of monitoring you pick, there will be different files and/or directories watched. 3) When the monitoring type you picked runs, the output will look like something like this: So, it will give you a basic visual of what is going on. Expects that the directory you specify contains a folder named "Monitored." Colin from Neato is one of our very early licensees. He used DirMon extensively while he was developing Proteus. Version 1.5 Added an extensive manual to explain the various parameters and options. Version 1.5 Alpha The program now has a more "graphical" interface. Version 1.3 Added support for groups. You will now be able to monitor multiple directories with one program. Added an option to watch for system events, such as Process Created, File Created, File Deleted, File Renamed, File Opened and File Closed. Now includes a manual to explain all the options. Version 1.3 Alpha Added support for groups. You will now be able to monitor multiple directories with one program. Added an option to watch for system events, such as Process Created, File Created, File Deleted, File Renamed, File Opened and File Closed. Now includes a manual to explain all the options. Version 1.2 Added a text file that will show you what directories you are watching for changes in. Added an option for each directory to only monitor for specific file changes. What's New In DirMon?

DirMon is a utility that simulates a common user case. When a file is created in a directory, DirMon will handle that automatically. If a file is deleted, DirMon will handle the delete operation. DirMon steps: 1. directory path is entered into the terminal window 2. DirMon will then create a file in that directory 3. DirMon will wait for the file to be created 4. DirMon will delete the file 5. DirMon will notify the user that the file is no longer there Brief DirMon usage: dir="path/to/dir/here" DirMon -f "path/to/file.txt" This command will kick off the creation of a file. It does not matter what is saved in the file. It will wait for it to finish and then the DirMon process will notify the user that the file has been saved successfully. DirMon -d dir/ This command will kick off the deletion of a file. It does not matter what is saved in the file. It will wait for it to finish and then the DirMon process will notify the user that the file has been successfully deleted. All of the commands work with absolute paths. If you use a path in the terminal, DirMon will only know about the directory the command was issued from. When DirMon executes a command it will test the directory where the command is being executed from. If that directory does not exist it will create it. DirMon is not extremely complex and it can be used for all kinds of scripting and automation. It also allows it to be customized for any scenario you might have. What is nice about this tool is that it can be run silently in the background without any user interaction or knowledge. DirMon can record the successful completion of a task then notify you with a simple dialog box when the task is done. DirMon Features: Directories Watched by DirMon · File/Dir Created/Removed · DirCreate · DirDelete · DirMove Records the Last 6 File/Dir Events · Creation · Deletion · Moving · Renaming · Creating · Deleting On Cue · On Time · On Error · One Off · Two Off · Three Off · Four Off · Five Off · Six Off Debugging · If you have problems with code or it does not work · Do not be
