Hi Guys, is there any difference between "motherboard integrated sound" and "dedicated sound card"? I have an ASUS P5KPLAM SE with a motherboard integrated sound and "Google Music" which uses Dedicated Sound I don't know what the difference is between those things. Can anyone please help me find out please? In the bios there is an option called "sound support" but there is only the option to support either "motherboard integrated sound" or "dedicated sound card". If you look above I have the "Intel Centrino Drivers for Windows" and "Motherboard drivers and utilities". Can I install that and it will just use the motherboard drivers? Hi guys, I have a new computer with the Intel Core 2 Duo E7500 processor. I am trying to figure out how to install the Intel SD sound drivers. I have checked the motherboard disc that came with my computer and it has the drivers for the Sound Card, if that is what your asking. But there is nothing about the Intel SD drivers or how to install them.

If anyone knows how to do this or has had any experience with it, please let me know. Any help is greatly appreciated. Thank you! A: The Intel SD sound drivers are part of the motherboard BIOS, not part of a driver disc for the computer. A better driver disc would have included both the Intel SD drivers and the motherboard BIOS drivers. I think it is good that ASUS decided to include the Intel SD drivers in the motherboard BIOS. Without these drivers, it would not have been possible to use the Integrated Intel SD speaker and microphone in the ASUS P5KPLAM SE without using external speakers or microphones.
