MESTONAL CRUSTUME-BALANCE Bested in the Earth Crash The world of Bionite is at war. A alien race known as 'Angels' have inflicted meteorite mayhem, burning the Earth's crust to cinders. Now their livesblood is fed by a delicacy, an Elixir of Mellect-Blast, which grants its progeny the power to engage in organism-staining conflict against living humanlike creatures known as 'Beasts'. The reason why the Angels have chosen Earth as the focal point of this latest act of war is rooted in the hopes of enabling an unimpeded source of the bounty known as 'Menton-Force' - the lode encrusting this planet's crust which long ago drew them to Earth's attention. However, the Beast's relatively small population, a mere handful in comparison to the local ratio of Angels, is sufficient to threaten the Angels' precious source of sustenance, leading them to make their first unprovoked act of bloodshed against these new enemies. Where the Angels are constrained by Earth's native population, those with a debatable proximity to Menton-Force are the object of a greater hosannas, and this is where Dunya's Eporian travels begin... An Aquarian Predatory Species Dunya is an Aquarian Predator who grew up hunting the unsuspecting with her trusty sidekick, Grey, who is an Aquarian Panther. When they were forced to leave home, defeated when the Aerial campaign spiked on them with the threat of extermination, it was then that they were provided an opportunity of a life they could never have imagined. With the opportunity of melding two competing biospheres, they secretly set out on a serpentine journey to the ocean-pit which will set their life's direction. However, unlike their cousins, the Ape-Aquarians, who submissively take part in the constant struggle to harvest Menton-Force, these Aquarians are every bit the aggressors. They are separatists who will only pounce during times of doubt, and will replicate the population of prey as part of their caution. When they're not lurking in the depths of the oceans, they'll take a more active stance, melding their bodies with the largest Beast settlements to emerge at a
