What's New In?

A BlogsBot is a software which is designed to help you post content to your blogs at specific intervals of time. To achieve this, the software will give you a list of the topics and keywords that you want the software to post contents to your blogs. Once you give the software these topics, you can see the results at your blogs immediately. The software can also post content in the behalf of you. All you need to do is give the software the topics and keywords. Then the software will do the rest of the job for you.

Q: Replacing a Substring in a bash variable. I have written a function in bash that takes a user input along with one more arguments which is the string to replace. I write it as:

//function
replaces_param function replaces_param(){ echo -ne
"${@:2}" }
The problem here
is when I try to run the function like this: echo -ne

`"${replace_pms(` `"${pms_str:2}")}"` What should be the correct way to do this? Tried looking at various other answers on stackoverflow as well as a few tutorials. Also the result that I am getting is this: `pms_str2` A: Use `${pms_str:2}` in your function,
or better yet:
`pms_str=${pms_str:2} echo`
`-ne "$pms_str"` In your example you have a syntax error in the function name: the second parameter is not part of the function name but is a separated parameter.

President Donald Trump said Friday that after the US “obliterates” all ISIS targets in Afghanistan, Iraq, Syria and Yemen, “we’ll be out of there.” Trump told reporters in the Oval Office that countries he'd already named would be the last countries to get US troops. Trump also said that before any nation’s leader does anything on the international stage, they'll have to ask him about it first.
