It was seen not only as an expression of faith but also as having an effect on the war effort and the peace process, and different faiths had their own beliefs and expressed their concern with what was happening in the world. And, when the war came to a close and people began to look back, they often talked of its "unbelievable" and "unimaginable" aspects - the death, suffering, destruction and suffering, even as they continued to live in the often unbearable aftermath. Field of the Invention This invention relates to an apparatus for implementing a color discrimination of a natural image, for example, according to the "HVS" system. 2. Description of the Prior Art A known image display apparatus for implementing a color discrimination by using a multi-color CRT is disclosed in Japanese Laid-Open patent application No. 56-176898. This conventional color image display apparatus is arranged to display respective color signals as three discrete colors of primary, secondary and tertiary colors on three CRTs. Three color signals R(Red), G(Green) and B(Blue) of different frequencies and phases are supplied to the input terminals of the apparatus. These color signals can be obtained by calculating and recombining colors of three primary colors of red (R), green (G) and blue (B). The color signals are converted into a voltage (for example, 30 to 70 volts) by D/A converters (DACs) and applied to the non-illuminated side of the CRTs, while a driving voltage (for example, 100 to 200 volts) for the CRTs is applied thereto from a driving voltage power supply system. A driving voltage level of the color signals for the CRTs is set such that, at least, two color signals of different frequencies are selected to be applied to each CRT. Therefore, the color signals for the CRTs are applied with the phases shifted in a difference frequency by 180 degrees. With the conventional image display apparatus, the brightness and the contrast are degraded due to a cross-talk among the color signals of different frequency applied to the multi-color CRT from the input terminals and the supply line of the driving power supply system. The cross-talk results from a phase difference among the color signals in a spectral distribution of the multi-color CRT. That is, when the color signals R, G and B are supplied to the CRT for the first time, for example, the frequency of the color signal R is higher than the frequencies of the color signals G and B, so that an echo of the color signal R is mixed in the color signals G and B. This causes a rise of the harmonics at the edges of the spectral distribution. Thus, it is expected that the brightness and contrast are reduced in
