Ion migration in dense solvation shells: Comparison of nanoconfined ionic liquids and confined polyelectrolytes with sharp-cut-off water-mediated interactions. Ion migration in nanoconfined environments is of tremendous importance for ionic liquids (ILs) and the development of IL-based actuators. In this work, we use molecular dynamics (MD) simulations to study the salt self-diffusion and water (guest) incorporation in the nonpolar core of the ILs, [BMIM][PF(6)], [BMIM][TFSI] and [BMIM][Tf(2)N] confined in various substrates of different hydrophilicity. To the best of our knowledge, this is the first study of self-diffusion of ILs inside nanoconfined material. Our findings demonstrate that confinement leads to a significantly lower self-diffusion rate compared to the bulk. With increasing hydrophilicity of the substrate, an increasingly larger hydration shell is formed around the ions; for [BMIM][PF(6)], [BMIM][TFSI], and [BMIM][Tf(2)N], this leads to the formation of intermolecular sharp-cut-off water-mediated interactions. In both the ILs and polyelectrolytes (PEs), we find an increase of the self-diffusion rate with increasing ion size and charge. This, however, is not the case for small guest molecules such as

Fifa 22 Features Key:

- New “HyperMotion” Physics – Set in motion.

- Classic ball control-based passing. Read and execute with complete accuracy of ball parry and pass. Replay clear you goal in the middle, get the ball deep or glide a throw pass with a simple flick.
- Pro-controller functionality to simulate direct free kicks, goal kicks, and player reactions. Make precise pitches or let fly with the the rasp of close control passing.
- Improves lighting and shadows, with more varied textures and surface complexities at the speeds you’re at. Breathing life into the pitch and player action.

- We have a 10 second dribbling animation which incorporated fast footwork, heavy base, and pressure on the ball to a maximum extent. Players other than Lionel Messi do have pressure applied while pressing, without overburdening the stamina that comes with being Messi.
- Improved animations on passes. Particularly low percentage, and long range passes with the body motion in the body and feet that we've looked at all the way from initiator follow up, defender shifts, as striker on off-side, cut to feet, and long bending passes.
- Showtime Pass animations - We have added all of the hidden pass animations when performing trick plays. Over 50 different animations, including fake passes, back post passes, and through balls for a total of 250 passes. They are also smart, generating a subtle block from opposing defenders and more realistic damage from defenders. Defenders attempt fake passes, jump for balls, use narrow windows to attempt a shot on goal, shift to attempt a tackle, finally sliding over to try and block a pass. Balancing out with a neat and subtle animation panel, as even with all the tools players have at their disposal, they need to master their tools to move a ball, not making it impossibly smooth
