Some guys were pointing out that we're leaving our $_GET values on the page from when a user logged in. So i'm trying to figure out how to remove them from the $_POST request. My server has a few variables that are strictly identifying user info when they login, and no one else, that's why i'm so confused about this. Does anyone know how i can hide them from the $_POST request. Essentially i need to somehow remove them from the $_POST. request before i do anything else. I know i can add the values to the $_POST using But is there a way to automatically do this so i don't have to do if for every variable? A: I'm assuming you are using GET with POST. You can remove the GET variables from your POST form, they are not relevant to your POST request. Molecular characterization of the GNL homologue and the GNL-like (gnl) gene of Strongyloides stercoralis. As part of our attempts to characterize the genes encoding the 7,11-dihydroxylase in Strongyloides stercoralis, we have used degenerate oligonucleotides to PCR amplify a gene encoding a hypothetical protein of 103 amino acids. The gene was identified as a single copy gene of about 12 kb and its location was mapped by Southern analysis to chromosome II. The sequence of this gene was determined and showed a high degree of conservation with that of GNL-like from Caenorhabditis elegans (78.1% at the nucleotide level) and GNL from Dictyostelium discoideum (83.9%
