Is it possible to echo a string into a file without overwriting it (i.e., it shouldn't be overwritten by the prior text)? A: if (($count_files > 0)) # write entire line to stream # offset starts at 0, so use print stream variable $fp = fopen($file, 'w'); print($file." "); fwrite($fp, $line); fclose($fp); # remove file unlink($file); A: just give a close file() $file = fopen($name,'a') or die("Could not open file"); $data = 'This is test data'; fwrite($file, $data); fclose($file); echo 'test completed'; A: As has been commented, everything else is wrong. The problem with what you are trying to do is that files are read-only. This means you cannot just pass a string to them, because you cannot write a string. There is no way to emit a string to a file that does not re-write the file. Your best bet is to do this outside of the file system. You

It's working fine in FireFox and Chrome, but in Internet Explorer 8 it only shows the progress value and nothing else. I have tried setting the progress bar control's visible property to true in script manager as well as setting the style of the progress bar to hidden, and changing it from "none" to "inherit", but nothing seems to work. My code for the progress bar is here - I would appreciate any help. Thanks! A: Do you have Javascript errors in IE8? In my case it was the jQuery that caused it: Error: $.Callbacks.invoke error: is not a function in A: i also had this problem. i solved it by forcing script mngmt to add exception code to stop script errors, see Rotherham man stabbed to death in Manchester Published duration 23 March 2018 image caption Police said there were "strong indications" the victim was not the intended target A man has been stabbed to death in Manchester, police have said. Officers were called to the foot of Gallow Hill shortly after 04:00 GMT to reports of an assault. When they arrived, the 32-year-old victim was taken to hospital where he was later pronounced dead. Detectives said there were "strong indications" the attack was not targeted. A post-mortem examination is to be held in due course. This proposal is for an extension of my current
