Text only. No graphics or sound. No animations. No magic. The storyteller is the hero. Your character is in danger. You must save the city. But theres more to life than just saving the world. You are human. Youve been taught to believe in angels and devils, Gods and monsters, laws and chaos. You have a mind to question everything, but a heart to believe. Are you ready for the truth behind the myths? Game Mechanics: Every choice you make influences your experience at Magi Academy. The story includes choices, multiple endings, and an epic scale. However, you have a lot to consider before you even start. Starter Line: I opened the box. Turned out to be another pretty day in New Magi City. I stepped outside to take in the fresh air. "Im going to defend myself," I pushed him back with my left fist. "Don't make me defend you. Im still upset with you." Benjamin looked nervous, but shook his head. "I know you are. Well, truth be told, I am also... I'm trying to be. People have been trying to control me for years. Maybe if I don't do it anymore, I can control my own heart. I know you are right. I shouldn't have run away from you when you came to talk to me. I'm sorry. I need to be more careful." I backed away a little bit. "You have to be careful as well," he said. I turned around to take a step back, until I ran into a pillar. "Damn! You'll pull your leg out, Benny," "Yeah,
