A: You cannot directly convert a presentation to a.ptg format. The normal way to save your work is to save it as a file in the PowerPoint Open XML format. Save As usually prompts you to save the file as a PowerPoint file. If you are in preview mode, as you do not have the.pptx extension, you must save as a.pptx. Once you have saved it as.pptx, you can send it to somebody and ask them to open it with a viewer that can open PowerPoint presentations. The most common viewer is LibreOffice. LibreOffice can open.pptx files.

A: From the looks of it, there isn't any direct way to do what you want. You can export PowerPoint presentations as PDF and/or PPTX by using the "Save As" command. You can save your PowerPoint file as a PowerPoint XML archive and then send it to other people. There are several archive formats, including.pptx and.pptxml. You can find more details here: However, there is a third-party software called PPT2Ptg that can convert PowerPoint presentations to this.ptg format, although the conversion process is quite slow and it is not very intuitive.
