I am doing this in an SSIS package. I have a collection of data adapters that read from each of the different tables, but I want to be able to read data from all tables. For example, if the tables are PEOPLE, CITY, ADDRESS, I want my package to be able to read data from all the tables in the database, and not just the PEOPLE table. In other words, if the people are created first, but the city and address tables are added later, I don't want to just read from the PEOPLE table but the CITY, ADDRESS tables as well. Any ideas? Thanks in advance. A: UPDATES Sorry I missed that you want to pull data from all tables. The select list should be hard-coded, meaning something like: INSERT INTO [dbo].[tbl_name] SELECT * FROM [dbo].[other_table_name] If you simply run this code from the query editor - it will only read the first table. --Get the list of tables DECLARE @TableList TABLE( [TableName
