The Village Board is expected to approve the first step of a two-phase plan to transform the village's T-style facades into more contemporary designs. The Village Board is expected to review the first site plan for 2050 Fishers Way, which was filed Tuesday and posted on the village's website Wednesday. The second phase of the project will include demolition of the existing structures and new construction. Patricia LaPorte, the village's public works manager, anticipates that village staff will be authorized to bid out the second phase of the project in about six weeks, if the board agrees to go ahead with the initial plan. The 2050 Fishers Way project is one of five public works plans for the village. Those plans range from ripping out and replacing a HVAC system in the village library to updating the village administration building. "We're really reaching out to the community to evaluate where we are and where we want to go," LaPorte said. "This is to help us in that direction." The cost of both phases of the project is estimated at $1.4 million. The village's planning commission has been working on the T-style projects are part of a larger village capital improvement plan that aims to upgrade several village buildings, including the administration building. "We have asked for the input of the planning commission to point out to us where it makes sense to do the work and where it doesn't," LaPorte said. "I think the community has shown us that there is enough demand to proceed with all of these projects." The village already has been working on the administration building projects, a
